Bio

From the very beginning, Reid has been following his intuition. He was raised by parents with a keen metaphysical outlook on life and who applied this metaphysical viewpoint in their daily experience. As an adult, Reid spent his professional career in the corporate world as a group creative director for a global Fortune 500 company.

During the pandemic, a series of events guided him down a fascinating path of new bread crumbs that introduced him to the world of meditation, reincarnation, and the "law of attraction." From this journey, Reid discovered that the deliberate practice of simply having fun has been a counterintuitive yet astonishing path to joy and financial abundance.

Reid soon left his corporate job and is now an entrepreneur, designer, and life coach. He continues to enjoy traveling and following his passion and expertise through a variety of creative projects.
